Abstract

In the last decades, we have experienced an exponential growth in the capacity to generate and store data of diverse nature, thanks in part to the electronic devices connected to the Internet, and in the capacity to analyze them with Big Data analytics and Artificial Intelligence techniques. And curiously, the complex and global challenges that we are facing in our digitalized societies show how vulnerable we are. Nature has been adapting and evolving in its struggle for survival with other species and the environment. Biological interactions and traits diversify across multiple scales of organization, from neurons to populations and space-time scales, maintaining a complex ecological balance. This endless eco-evolutionary arms race inspires a new Artificial Intelligence approach for a sustainable knowledge-based global society. The signs of identity are evolution and interaction and are substantiated by federated networks, that is, heterogeneous networks with internal nodal structure, in which many different groups of species, humans and technologies coexist to exploit resources in complex ecosystems. Our mission is to lay the foundations of an open and cooperative science ecosystem that help us to face the challenges of global sustainability. We validate our approach with a case study focusing on the sustainability of the Oceans, the largest ecosystem on the planet and a major player in the climate balance.

5 - Call-specific questions

Extended Open Research Data Pilot in Horizon 2020

If selected, applicants will by default participate in the Pilot on Open Research Data in Horizon 2020¹, which aims to improve and maximise access to and re-use of research data generated by actions.

However, participation in the Pilot is flexible in the sense that it does not mean that all research data needs to be open. After the action has started, participants will formulate a Data Management Plan \(DMP\), which should address the relevant aspects of making data FAIR – findable, accessible, interoperable and re-usable, including what data the project will generate, whether and how it will be made accessible for verification and re-use, and how it will be curated and preserved. Through this DMP projects can define certain datasets to remain closed according to the principle "as open as possible, as closed as necessary". A Data Management Plan does not have to be submitted at the proposal stage.

Furthermore, applicants also have the possibility to opt out of this Pilot completely at any stage (before or after the grant signature). In this case, applicants must indicate a reason for this choice (see options below).

Please note that participation in this Pilot does not constitute part of the evaluation process. Proposals will not be penalised for opting out.

We wish to opt out of the Pilot on Open Research Data in Horizon 2020.
